

Vocal Interest Resources

Format	Description	Link
Video 2:54	David Attenborough shows the vocal range and dexterity of a native Southern Australian bird. A useful video to watch if you want proof of how powerful an instrument your voice is.	Click here
Video 19:37	A TED talk by Deb Roy documenting how he researches understanding how children learn language. A wonderful and engaging way to remember how hard we all worked to develop the ability to use speech. Drop in at 4:30 to hear Deb's son at one year old learning how to pronounce the word "water" over a six month period.	Click here
Blog	What constitutes the perfect voice? Is it totally subjective or can the ingredients be isolated and described objectively?	Click here
Resource	Resources and Tools in Speech, Hearing and Phonetics	Click here
Resource	The McGuire Programme is the world's go-to place for people who stutter.	Click here
Blog	An outline of one part of the work of Yat Malgren and the role it can play in gaining greater control of how to use your voice consciously to create different impacts and effects.	Click here
Thesis	Vladimir Mirodan's thesis from 1997 "The Way of Transformation (The Laban-Malmgren System of Dramatic Character Analysis).	Click here